This is another instance of dragging feet. I think enough is enough and we need to move on. Let's get this matter of with. LEAVE MICROSOFT ALONE and move onto issues --real issues. I believe that if it weren't for Microsoft we wouldn't be where we are at today with our technology. I'm glad that MS is not going to be split up but we need to get on with things. You know before all this we ran Netscape's browser at home --but we have since then switched to only running IE as we feel it's a better browser. I don't see a monopoly here. I see competitors that might have an inferior product and want the help of the Government to boost their product. Let's drop this shenanigans and get on with the business.
